Race Horse Doping in Paris to Be Probed; Americans Are Blamed

PARIS. - The biggest doping scandal since pre-war days, involving, according to report, several American trainers, is the seneation of that large part of Paris known as the racing world. Stewards of the racing club have the cases under advisement and it is expected that several trainers will be barred for life from French racing stables.

Frequently, throughout the season, dark horses have come in as winners, upsetting all predictions and all dope based on records. The saliva of some of the horses which had been acting peculiarly was examined by a veterinarian, Ductor Kauffman.

L'Eclair pointedly states that these examinations were directed especially at several American trainers. According to the sporting editor of this paper doping is an American custom and despite their energetic denials. If doping has been introduced into France the Americans are responsible.
